Chicago Street Supper Club draws Baldwin County food lovers to Foley

BY WHISPER EDWARDS
 Editorial Assistant

Baldwin County food lovers gathered for one of the most highly anticipated dining events of the year, the Chicago Street Supper Club, which took place on Friday, Oct. 18 in the heart of downtown Foley.

Organized by the South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce, the exclusive outdoor event once again sold out, offering attendees a night of culinary indulgence under the stars.

The Supper Club is known for transforming North Chicago Street into an elegant dining space, where award-winning local chefs and artisans team up to create an unforgettable four-course meal. The evening began with a cocktail hour prepared by Matt Palamara of Gulf Coast Culinary Institute, setting the tone for the night's sophisticated atmosphere.

Hunter and Amber Harris of Mon Louis Supper Club kicked off the dinner with an array of appetizers, followed by a refreshing salad and soup course from John Davis of Savanna's. The centerpiece of the meal, an expertly crafted entrée, was prepared by Brody Olive, executive chef at Perdido Beach Resort. For dessert, the duo behind SugarLove Food Truck, Lauren and Brandi Stallworth, delighted guests with a sweet finale.

Each course was paired with a carefully selected wine, elevating the dining experience to new heights. The Supper Club's unique blend of local flavors and community spirit showcased the talents of the region's finest chefs, farmers and artisans, leaving guests with memories to savor.

Organized by the South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce, the exclusive outdoor event once again sold out, offering attendees a night of culinary indulgence under the stars.

Presented by The Law Offices of Brenton C. McWilliams, a 2021 Best of Baldwin Winner for Estate Planning, the event offered casual cocktail attire and convenient parking near Heritage Park. Guests were treated to the best of Baldwin County's culinary scene, in an atmosphere where food, wine and conversation flowed freely. For more information, visit the South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce website.

Burgers and hot dogs were served fresh off the grill, but first responders could also pick up a bag of food, along with snacks and drinks.

made an appearance.

Morgan said her favorite thing about the cookout is serving the local community and giving back to first responders in Baldwin County and across Alabama.

"They're facing some tough times and they're getting a bad reputation, so it's exciting to see them feel appreciated and happy to do what they're doing, because I know it's a tough job and we need them to continue doing it," Morgan said. "It's just exciting to thank them in person."

With thousands of burgers and other foods served to first responders, the Alabama Forestry Association is proud of its work and hopes the cookout will continue every year to come.

"10,000 hamburgers and 10,000 hot dogs in the last two years," Morgan estimated. "So we are excited to continue doing this, and we hope to continue."
